

ECG processing by transformation methods

G. Bognár, Z. Gilián

Department of Numerical Analysis, Faculty of Informatics, ELTE

`bognargergo@caesar.elte.hu`

We discuss and compare different transformation methods (wavelet transforms, rational functional systems, Hermite functions, etc.) according to various aspects of ECG processing, such as approximation, compression and classification.

The novelty of the presented work is an adaptive rational transformation and its application to heartbeat classification in ECG signals.